Debility

Perhaps you eat enough, yet you do not get much benefit from your food. You keep thin and weak; are tired all the time, and your nerves are in a bad way. Why not strengthen your digestion and get rid of your debility?

Read these words from Mrs. E. G. Munro, of Coburg, Victoria. Mrs. Munro also sends her photograph.
"I suffered greatly with indigestion and debility for a long time. Sleep did not refresh me, and I was in a very bad state. One of my friends strongly recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after a good deal of hesitation I made up my mind to try it. To my great surprise, I had not taken one-half a bottle before I felt greatly improved in every way. I only took three bottles, and I can now honestly say that I am entirely free from all of my old troubles, and consider myself perfectly cured. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is certainly a wonderful blood medicine."

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

There are many imitation Sarsaparillas. Be sure you get "Ayer's."

POLICE REGULATION IS DISCREDITED

AT THE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE HELD RECENTLY IN BRUSSELS ATTENDED BY MOST EMINENT MEN FAVORABLE TO THAT METHOD OF DEALING WITH THE SOCIAL EVIL, IT FAILED OF RECOMMENDATION.

The readiness of High Sheriff Henry to take up the idea of segregation and regulation, as a means of dealing with the social evil, is on a par with the illegal and unauthorized way in which he undertook to do it. Segregation and regulation is more completely discredited among those who have given the subject study and attention than it has probably ever been in the past hundred years. In Paris, where it is supposed to have the strongest hold and which is pointed to as the convincing example, by the regulationists, it is practically discredited.

The most serious consideration ever given to the subject by the most eminent authorities in the world on the subject, was at the "International Conference for the Prophylaxis of Syphilis and Venereal Maladies," held recently at Brussels. The following is a review of the work of that conference:

The letter of invitation stated that:
The constantly increasing propagation of syphilis and venereal maladies is become a serious danger for society. It is necessary whilst there is yet time to take measures to attempt to arrest the invading march of this plague. It is with a view of grouping and unifying all efforts that a Committee has been formed, and has decided to organize an International Conference for the prophylaxis of syphilis and venereal maladies.

The following are the six questions which formed the program of the Conference, and which accompanied the letter of invitation:

1. Have the systems of regulation, actually in force, had an influence upon the frequency and dissemination of syphilis and venereal maladies?
2. Is the present organization of the medical surveillance of prostitution capable of improvement?
3. Exclusively from the medical point of view, is there any advantage in maintaining the maisons de tolerance, or would it be better to suppress them?
4. Is the administrative organization of the police surveillance of prostitution capable of improvement?
5. By what legal measures can the number of women who derive their means of existence from prostitution be diminished?
6. Leaving prostitution out of the question, what general measures can be taken effectually to combat the propagation of syphilis and of venereal maladies?

The Conference was probably the largest, most complete, and most weighty of its kind ever held. The following governments appointed representatives: Germany, Austria, Bosnia, Brazil, Bulgaria, Chili, Denmark, Spain, the United States of America, France, England, Honduras, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Paraguay, Persia, Peru, Holland, the Argentine Republic, Roumania, Russia, Serbia, Sweden, Switzerland and Belgium.

These delegates included nearly all the great Regulationist leaders of the world. Dr. Fournier, the medical head of the system in Paris, was president of the delegation of eighteen members from France, most of whom were officials employed under the system. Dr. Dohi, medical head of the system at the Yoshiwara at Tokyo, was one of a body of seven delegates nominated from Japan. The Berlin "Imperial Office of Hygiene" was represented by a number of delegates headed by Dr. Maubach. Most of the War Offices of the countries mentioned were represented. Great Britain sent representatives from the War Office and the India Office. Practically all the great medical bodies of the world were represented by their most noted specialists as delegates. Jonathan Hutchinson, who is recognized as one of the greatest specialists in Europe, represented the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

Abolitionists were also invited as "having in their public work, acquired a special competence in this matter." A number of these attended the Conference in their private capacity, and were treated with fairness both as regards space in the printed proceedings and time for speaking in the discussions; but of course they formed a small proportion only of the total present.

Statements of an alarming character had been made in the preliminary papers of the Conference as to an alleged enormous increase of venereal disease in England since the abolition of regulation. Dr. Fiaux, of Paris, ridiculed these statements, and said that if some of them were true "the entire English people would, in a short lapse of time, be a vast walking museum of infinitely varied masculine, feminine, and infantile cases of syphilis," instead of being, as was well known, one of the most vigorous nations on earth. This alleged "terrible increase of disease" in England since the Repeal of the Contagious Diseases Acts, was one of the "trump cards" of the Regulationists, but charts and papers prepared from the Returns of the Registrar-General and Army Medical Department showed a steady reduction of the malady in all directions since Repeal in England.

The speeches of numbers of the Continental Regulationists showed a waning faith in their system. The general trend of thought seemed to be towards the provision of free hospital treatment as opposed to the compulsion of the police. Compulsion, it was argued, drove many patients to hiding their maladies, and it was universally admitted that early treatment was an absolute necessity if the graver forms of the disease were to be avoided.

Professor Fournier, the medical head of the Paris system, early on in the proceedings of the Congress, gave a masterly analysis of 5,749 cases of tertiary syphilis occurring in his own private practice in Paris. This, and the very dark picture given by other members of the French delegation, evidently had a depressing effect on some of the English and other Regulationists who had attended the conference with the expectation of hearing much about the stamping out of the malady in France after 100 years of regulation.
